Ms Giselle Lim, a wildlife enthusiast, recounted an incident vividly. During one of her morning walks at Changi Beach, she witnessed a sight which made her jaw drop. Several beach goers were armed with shovels, tongs and pails, digging up holes on the shore and collecting crabs, fish, shells and other marine creatures. She was astounded.

(16) (17)

Ms Lim cautioned us that the actions of these beach goers would destroy the marine life and their habitats. Placing the marine creatures in a pail would cause the creatures to be in distress and their oxygen level to decrease rapidly. Eventually, these creatures would perish.

(18) (19) (20)

Ms Lim feels that there should be stricter enforcement to prevent such situations from happening. We should appreciate marine biodiversity and respect these marine creatures.

Join Food Bank Junior Club!

About Us FoodBANK

Food Bank Singapore was established in 2012. Our aim is to eliminate food insecurity* in Singapore. We collect cash and food donations with the help of volunteers. We redistribute food to over 300 registered welfare organisations such as family service centres, soup kitchens, old folks' homes, and schools with children from low income families.

DID YOU KNOW?

In 2020, we redistributed
1.6 MILLION KG of food
to people in need!

What is Food Bank Junior Club?

"Don't waste your food!" is a familiar reminder. Now, there is an opportunity for you to discover creative ways to reduce food wastage and help to build a future where there is food for everyone in Singapore.

The Food Bank Junior Club was formed to encourage young people to volunteer for a good cause. Volunteering allows you to be aware of what life can be like for the less privileged and learn to appreciate what you have.

"It was a fulfilling experience to volunteer at the Food Bank. I helped to sort and pack the donated food items into bags. When I delivered the food bundles and saw the smiles of the beneficiaries, I felt a sense of warmth. I never knew I could make a difference to someone's life! I will definitely volunteer my time at Food Bank whenever I am free."

Geraldine Lee (Student)

"After my son has joined the Food Bank Junior Club, I have seen great changes in him. He no longer buys unnecessary foodstuff. He makes a conscious effort to finish all the food on his plate. He is now our food manager and checks on the expiry date of all our food items.

Mr Roy Sim (Parent)

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B.

Zaka's mother had gathered the three children into their patio*. The look on her face suggested that one of them had committed a misdeed. "Which one of you did this?" Mother asked them harshly. Zaka, his elder sister and elder brother all stared down at the floor which had been drawn on in chalk. Zaka stood there, trembling inside. He hoped that no one else could see it.

"Will Mother know that it was me?" Zaka secretly wondered. Terrified, the only words that came from his mouth were, "Not me, Mum."

The others denied it as well. Of course, they knew that one of them must have done it. Zaka, being the youngest, just could not find the nerve to tell the truth. It was not that he was a bad kid. Lying was not something normal for him. The stern look on his mother's face that evening sent a chill down his spine. However, he could not bring himself to tell his mother the truth.

10

Mother had a way of making Zaka afraid. Her silent, frosty stare served as a constant reminder for him to restrain his actions. But he loved his mother for it too as it set Zaka limits of what he could and could not do. Zaka wanted to please her, of course. Maybe that was why he held back the truth that day. He was afraid of disappointing the one woman he looked up to. Without saying a word, Mother disappeared for a few minutes and came back with a piece of paper and a pencil. She was determined to find the culprit!

15

"I want each of you to write exactly what you see on the patio floor," Mother instructed. Zaka was quick-witted and when his turn came, he deliberately wrote the words differently. When his mother compared the handwriting, she still could not tell which one of them had done it. Frustrated, she stood up and looked down at her three young children. "I am going to give you one last chance to confess," Mother demanded. She continued to stand there for a few moments, but to Zaka, it seemed like an eternity. Sister seemed to be in deep thoughts. Just then, Brother gave him a steady knowing glare but remained silent. "Did Brother know that I'm the one?" Zaka thought. Panicked, Zaka held his tongue.

20

25

"Very well, if someone had come forward when I asked, there would have been no punishment!" Mother hollered.

30

"Oh no! It is too late now. I should have confessed! Now I will surely get it," Zaka thought to himself. Mother took them all into the house. Tears welled up in Zaka's eyes. "Since none of you seemed to have done it, you will all get a spanking!" bellowed Mother. Zaka stood still and said nothing. The last thing he wanted was a spanking!

35

"I did it," someone spoke up and Zaka was quite definite that it was not him. He saw his sister moving forward, standing bravely in front of their mother. Why was she taking the blame for something that he had done? Feeling guilty, yet too cowardly to divulge the truth, Zaka stood there knowing that his sister was to become the scapegoat for something he had done. And he let that happen. His lips remained sealed.

40

The family refrained from talking about that day for many years. Not until they were all much older and only when Zaka knew that it was safe for him to spill the beans did he finally tell Mother the truth. By that time, Zaka had also figured out why his sister had taken the rap for him. She wanted to be his protector. She would rather take the pain upon herself than see Zaka suffer. As Zaka always felt guilty over this incident, it was the last time he would let anyone take the blame for him.

45
